LETTER WRITING PROJECT PRODUCES 600 MISSIVES

Written By School Children, They Concern Stories of Writers' Pets

FORM AN EXCHANGE

Bucks County Humane Club reports that its recent letter writing project, held in schools, closed with over 600 letters received. The letters were concerned mainly with stories of the writers' pets, and the project was used in classrooms as an English lesson.

Some of the letters received from each school have been sent to girls and boys of corresponding ages in distant places, with the hope that a real friendship, by writing, may result between the writers and those receiving these letters. Some of the letters were accompanied by photographs of the pets.

Books and humane calendars are being sent to several of the schools from which many, and most interesting, letters were received. These include Passer school, in Springfield Township; Applebachville, in Haycock Township; Revere, Riegelsville; and Jefferson avenue and Bath street schools in Bristol.

The "Humane Review," published at Albany, N. Y., this month, gives interesting news of a new motion picture, "Henry Bergh, the Great Meddler."

This really portrays the beginning of the humane movement in America, for it tells the story of how the first society to protect children from cruelty was organized, through Henry Bergh's interest in a little girl named Mary Ellen.

In 1866 he had brought about the first society to protect animals from cruelty, and not long after this he was called upon, in the absence then of any legislation to protect children, to help the little girl found in wretched condition, living in a New York tenement. He was only just in time to save her from what might have been fatal cruelty at the hands of her guardians, and thus came the first S. P. C. C.

This picture has been produced under the supervision of Richard Craven, of the American Humane Association, who is now stationed in California, with the special job of taking cruelty out of the motion picture industry. One of the recent accomplishments along this line has been the abolishment of the device known as the running "W" used in tripping animals when making pictures. This will no longer be tolerated.

The review also tells that an effort is being made to have Henry Bergh included among the famous men and women in whose honor new stamps are being issued at this time.

Over 70,000 Soldiers Killed

Athens, Jan. 17.—More than 70,000 soldiers have been killed, wounded, or taken prisoner since the beginning of the Italo-Greek War, Greek military authorities announced today.

Fascist losses, it was stated, represented approximately one-third of the Italian Army at the time of the start of hostilities. No mention of Greek losses was made in the announcement.

RAF in Major Attack

BOYER, Eng., Jan. 17.—British bombers carried out a major attack on German-held channel ports this afternoon. Meanwhile, a German bomber was shot down off the north coast of Scotland.

Search For Missing Plane

MCHORD FIELD, Wash., Jan. 17.—(INS)—A twin-engine B-15 type Army bomber carrying four officers and three enlisted men was the object of a wide search today from McChord Field to Southern California and as far east as the Rockies.

The big plane was unreported since taking off in moderately bad weather at 19.20 a. m. yesterday for the Muroc Dry Lake bombing range near Lancaster, Cal.

Officially listed aboard the ship were:

First Lieut. R. N. Krummes, pilot.
Second Lieut. C. T. Nielsen, co-pilot.
Second Lieut. J. F. Geis, navigator.
First Lieut. L. E. Mackay.
Technical Sergeant H. A. Davis.
Sergeant L. H. Neitling.
Sergeant P. L. Maas.

Col. William H. Crom, commanding officer at McChord Field, said nothing had been heard from the bomber's radio since it left the field.

While a raging blizzard swept over mountainous southern Oregon and heavy rainfall drenched Washington, officials feared the plane may have been forced down in some isolated spot north of the California boundary.

Col. Crom notified civil aeronautics and airport officials, police and highway patrolmen in Washington, Oregon and California to be on the lookout for the ship. A precautionary check was being made as far east as the Rockies in case the ship changed its course to avoid storms raging over the Siskiyou and Sierra Nevada ranges.

The plane was instructed to stop at Sacramento air depot en route to its bombing assignment at Muroc. It was first missed when its pilot failed to report flight progress by radio.

According to officials at Pearson Field, Vancouver, Wash., the plane originally was based at Elendorf Field, Alaska. It was the same type bomber that crashed at Kalama, Wash., last August 30 after its crew parachuted to safety.

HULMEVILLE, Jan. 17.—Stricken with a heart attack at his home early last evening, Alfred J. Comly died instantly.

SET DEFINITE CHARGE FOR FIRE PROTECTION

Morrisville Council Decided To Charge Falls Twp. $300 For Maximum of 12 Calls

$25 EACH ADDITIONAL

MORRISVILLE, Jan. 17.—A charge of $300 for fire protection for a maximum of 12 calls, with $25 charge for each additional call, is to be made against Falls Township, it was decided by Morrisville borough council in session this week.

The new ruling regarding charges for fire protection will be put into effect on February 15th, if Falls Township desires such protection.

The board said that if the acceptance is not in their hands in writing by that date, then the borough will feel that the fire protection is not desired. This does not apply, it was stated, to property in Falls Township that can be reached by Morrisville water main, nor to calls where it is necessary to use the rescuistator, but is only being effective on fire calls.

For the past two or three years, the township has not paid the borough anything for its services, merely calling the Morrisville department when a large fire occurred, it is stated. However, Council feels that this has been rather frequent and now has set the $300 fire protection fee. Formerly, Falls paid the borough a stated fee.

Also passed was an ordinance regulating circuses and outdoor amusements, such as carnivals, etc. Any events such as these may take place only with a permit, obtainable from Secretary William H. Howell for a $2 fee. This ordinance was passed mostly because of a conflict in dates last year, when the two fire departments conducted their carnivals in different sections of the borough on the same nights.

The East Bristol Township P. T. A. will hold a meeting tonight in Edgely school house. Safety pictures will be shown and an interesting program has been arranged for the evening.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

A Presidential Mistake

Washington, Jan. 16. IT is to be regretted that Senator Wheeler should have used the language in opposing the President's lend-lease bill which so infuriated him. It was, of course, absurd to speak of the possibility that "every fourth American boy may be plowed under." With neither Mr. Wheeler's viewpoint nor his words has this column any sympathy whatever.

ON the contrary, the Roosevelt policy of all aid to the British seems the only enlightened and intelligent course for this country to pursue, not merely to save England but in our own selfish interests. If peace cannot come and the threat to our security be obliterated that way, then those things cannot be achieved at all. Nevertheless, the extraordinary outburst of the President, in which he used his press conference to denounce Senator Wheeler as a dastard and to declare that his remarks were the most "rotten," "untruthful" and "unpatriotic" that had been made in a generation, was so violent and excited as to disturb his friends even more than it angered his foes.

MR. ROOSEVELT does neither the cause he advocates nor himself any good by such unrefined denunciations. In the first place, Senator Wheeler is not unpatriotic. He is wrong, but he isn't a villain. In the second place, granting that he deserved rebuke for what he had said, it would have been much more effective to have ridiculed Mr. Wheeler than to denounce him. It would have been easy for the President to have made him look silly, but to violently berate him did several undesirable things.

FIRST, it dignified Senator Wheeler.

TWO MEN INJURED IN CRASH AT TULLYTOWN

Small Truck Skids Into 10-Ton Truck As Driver Loses Control On Icy Highway

BOTH IN HOSPITAL HERE

Two Philadelphia men were injured this morning and a Morrisville man escaped injury when two trucks crashed head-on on the Bristol Pike, about 300 yards east of Tullytown public school, near the Brennan residence.

Injured: George Bus'old, Jr., 26, North 15th street. Possible fractured ribs. Max Katz, 55, North Hutchinson street. Left leg fractured.

Both of the injured men were brought to the Harrisburg Hospital in Bristol. Busfield was brought to the hospital in the ambulance of the Bucks County Rescue Squad, and Katz was brought in a truck of the Bristol Consolidated Fire Department.

Bristol police were called immediately after the accident and the fire truck was sent to the scene and then the Rescue Squad was called and responded.

A Kirby & Kirby 16-ton truck driven by Leon W. Thompson, Morrisville, R. D., was proceeding west on the Bristol Pike and a one-half ton delivery truck operated by Katz was going east. Thompson said that he saw the Katz truck skid on the ice-covered highway, and swerve, and that the driver could not get it under control and that the small truck struck his big truck head-on. Both trucks were considerably damaged. After the crash, both cars were on the north side of the highway, with the Kirby truck partly off the road.

Katz was driving a truck for his son, who handles automatic musical machines. Busfield was riding with him.

Private T. F. Marks, Penna. Motor Police, Oxford Valley Barracks, investigated.

Two residents of Boston, Mass., the Misses Muriel Pinder and Gwendolyn Thompson, were taken to Nazareth Hospital, Philadelphia, this morning, following an accident on the Lincoln Highway at South Langhorne.

Adult Curriculum Limited Now To Twelve Courses

Registrations for courses to be given by Bristol Adult School indicated definite preferences for certain courses and, in view of insufficient registrations for other courses, the latter have been eliminated, by action taken by the executive board of the school at a meeting held last evening.

Curriculum selection is now limited to the following twelve courses: antiquities; bridge, beginners and intermediate; bridge, advanced; dancing; dressmaking; cabinet-making (woodwork); gymnasium, women's; effective speaking; music appreciation; sketching and painting; Spanish; typing.

Because of the keen interest shown by the community in this worthwhile undertaking, the board has decided to continue the time of registration until January 27th, in the above courses. Registration may be made at the residences of the following: Dr. John J. Hargrave, Radcliffe and Walnut streets; Mrs. William Harding, 905 Garden street; Mrs. William Wisner, 270 Monroe street; Bristol High School, Wilson avenue and Garfield streets; Paul V. Forster, 507 Radcliffe street; Mrs. Anthony Pfaffenrath, Bath Road; Mr. Andrew Jackson, Bath street; Mrs. Rhoda Walter, 333 Monroe street; Mrs. Earl McEuen, 268 Harrison street; Mrs. Rose Fladino, 220 Washington street; Mrs. C. A. Wheeler, Edgely avenue, Edgely.

The board will be glad to have those who registered for courses which must be discontinued because they did not appear strongly enough to the community, change their registration to one or more of the 12 other courses. However, if the courses being continued do not meet the needs of these individuals, fees paid by them for tuition will be refunded.

No course will be opened unless there is a minimum registration sufficient to cover the cost of instruction.

Clergyman Appears Before Members of Bristol Exchange Club

URGES PREPAREDNESS

"Real Values of Democracy Are Certainly Worth Saving," He States

The Bristol Exchange Club met last evening in the Elks Home with 23 members and three guests present. President Horace P. Schmidt presided. It was announced that on January 23rd the Club will go to Newtown as guests of the Newtown Exchange Club. The speaker at this meeting will be Harold Elde, noted explorer, who spoke to the students of Bristol high school on Wednesday.

President Schmidt introduced Wallace Murfit, Newtown, chairman of the Bucks County branch of the Salvation Army. Mr. Murfit explained the work of the Army in this district, and asked for support in the drive for funds in the near future. This drive will be carried out in Bristol by the Girl Reserves of Bristol high school, under direction of Miss Marion E. Peck.

Mr. Schmidt explained that the speaker scheduled for the evening, Monsieur Paul Pazrey, former vice-consul of the French government in Philadelphia was unable to appear due to transportation difficulties. He then called upon the Rev. James J. Bingham, an honorary member of the Bristol Club, for a few remarks. The Rev. Bingham spoke briefly to the club on issues of importance in regard to the present foreign situation.

"This is not a war between nations; it is one of ideals and philosophies of government; conflict of the theories of democracy and dictatorship," said Rev. Bingham. He pointed out that "we must concern ourselves with the real issues at stake in this war. If the dictator powers win this war, as a democracy we will be on the defensive, because the leaders of the Axis powers have frequently admitted that they are the only people who have the right to rule. Hitler in his 'Mein Kampf,' expresses the theory of Germanic supremacy, and if he wins he will attempt to dominate as much of the

COLLEGE "FAILURES"

Ignorance of what college is going to be like and, in a real sense, what it is for is held to be as much to blame for the numerous withdrawals from undergraduate life as is academic failure. This is a conclusion based upon a study of more than 1,200 students who entered college from 103 Eastern United States secondary schools, which was made by Lincoln B. Hale of Carleton College. The study develops that those who go on to the end of a four-year course do not exceed in intelligence those who drop out.

Seen in black and white in a formal report, this seems startling. But when correlated to the memory of any alumnus ten years or more removed from academic shades it is not, on second thought, so surprising. He can recall bright boy after bright boy who did not finish with his class. Perhaps one did not know how to husband and manage his finances; perhaps another, emerging from a rigid parental control, interpreted college freedom to mean college license; maybe a third "got in with the wrong crowd," still another, caught up in a vivid social life, may have lost a sense of proportion, content just to "brush by" in his studies, and even failing in that. The transition from school to college was, in each case, too abrupt. There should have been some sort of pre-college preparation on the social and economic side.

But it does not follow that the victim of maladjustment at the outset of college days will not, though he may bear the scars of it for a long time, ultimately achieve an adjustment, however with much more difficulty. It may even, in some instances, make him possessor of a cultural content equal to, though not identical with, what would have been his had his college course been uninterrupted.

A study of what happens as the years pass to the dropouts could be fascinating per se, but it is scarcely of such nature as to justify the use of college funds.

NOT SO LOWLY

The potato is maligned by those who label it lowly. Close as it may be to the surface of Mother Earth, it comes to man in numbers exceeding by billions the total of the pretty or lordly things which droop from the trellis vines or hang ripe on the pomegranate trees. There can be nothing lowly about a vegetable without which millions would find the day wasted.

Broiled, baked, rissole, French fried, plain fried, mashed, au gratin, and by many other simple or fancy names, the potato is something hardly likely to be kicked off the menu, despite those who try to teach that the potato is fattening.

Everyone knows of folks who love potatoes and have eaten them all their lives, yet are as skinny as a stringbean. Nothing of this is in defense of the Empire State Potato Club, which had its annual meeting in Buffalo, N. Y., nor of the many farmers who get their living out of growing potatoes, for no defense is needed.

But all those who would find the choicest steak lonesome without a helping of potatoes may be pleased to hear that a doctor-teacher of State College, Pa., declared in her address to the growers' convention that the potato is "no more fattening than an equivalent amount of calories from any other source."

WOTAN'S WEDGE by FRANCIS GERARD A PRELUDE TO BLITZKRIEG

SYNOPSIS

Prince Max von Wallenfels, stalwart young Prussian, slew his former friend, Count Ulrich von Tarlesheim, in a sword duel fought shortly after dawn on December 31, 1900. He did so to avenge "fame" honor" jeopardized by the unwelcome marriage of Ulrich to Max's sister, Princess Elizabeth. Soon after the duel, Elizabeth's new-born baby was carried off, but not before the family's insignia—"Wotan's Wedge"—had been tattooed by his mother on a tiny forearm. As a stormy domestic scene was ending, Anna, aged nurse, prophesied while the wailing baby was being removed: "Cry out! Cry out! What they have done to you, so will you do to them and Wallenfels will be naught but a tragic name in a history book."

CHAPTER NINE

And nearly forty years passed before the truth of the old woman's words was proved. . . . For it was in the England of 1939 that the fortunes of the House of Wallenfels finally foundered.

The British Broadcasting Company weather forecast at nine o'clock that night informed their disillusioned listeners that there would be "slight rain spreading from the west with sunny periods over eastern and south-eastern England." None was surprised, therefore, when the following morning yielded a thick blanket of fog over the greater part of eastern and south-eastern England.

Plodding grimly through swathes of fog along the Battersea Bridge Road, Matthew Beef pulled his coat collar closer about his ears and fumed over the weather, the B.B.C. forecast, the railroad because his train from Colchester had been late, the underground railway because he had got his heel shut in a closing door, and finally the lighting company for not providing, in his opinion, sufficient street lamps.

Owing to the fog, Beef's arrival in London had made him too late to fetch his sister and accompany her from her house as he had promised. That was bad, that was. Amelia was in a proper state over this "ere business an' no mistake, neither. Couldn't wonder at it really, seeing as 'ow young Bert was all that was left to 'er, like. Beef, himself, hadn't cottoned to his nephew much, but still the lad was not as bad as some of the youngsters nowadays, no, not by a long shot! An' now he'd gone and done himself in.

Absorbed by funeral thoughts, Beef had been walking along without taking that proper care which a pedestrian, desirous of preserving his life, should exercise. In consequence he suddenly found his foot descending into space—he had merely stepped off the curb—and before he knew what had happened he had cannoned into something large and darkly clad.

"Ere, 'ere, what's all this?" asked a gruff voice.

Mr. Beef pulled his hat off his face and glaring at the policeman said, "Why don't you look where you're going?"

"Now, now, sir," admonished the policeman and broke off to peer closer at the round, red face of his vis-a-vis. "Why, bless my soul, sir, if it isn't Mr. Beef! I don't expect as you'll remember me, Sergeant, but I used to work under you when you and Mr.—that is, Sir John Meredith—was on the Dove cases."

Matthew Beef, pleased at being recognised after his retirement, stared round-eyed at the other and nodded. "I've got you m'lad. Your name's Smithers. Never forget a face nor a name neither, and the old brain-box still works even if we 'ave retired. That is," he added unnecessarily, "me and Sir John."

"You always 'ad a phenom . . . good memory, Sergeant," beamed the constable. "Up in town for the day, sir?"

Ex-Detective Sergeant Beef shook his head. "Just for the mornin'." And showing a slip of paper to Smithers, "Can you tell me where this place is?"

"Why, that's where the Coroner's inquest is on," exclaimed Police Constable Smithers. "Young feller gone and knocked 'issself off. Mrs. Slatter's boy. Are you interested in the case, sir?"

"My nephew," nodded Beef gloomily. "And I've come up to offer support, so to speak, to my sister."

"Very right and proper, too, sir," agreed the policeman. "I thought

"Well, if you'll excuse me, old man," said Beef. "I see my sister over there. I'll just go and sit with her."

"Yes, of course," nodded the chief inspector. "Oh, by the way, how's Meredith?"

"Enjoyin' of his usual good health," replied Beef.

"And Lady Meredith?"

"Ah," said Beef sentimentally, "just as pretty as a pitcher, just as pretty!"

Beef crossed the cheerless room and sat down on a hard chair beside his sister. At the sight of the solid figure of her brother, Mrs. Slatter began to weep again.

"Oh, Mat!" she gulped. "It oughtn't to 'ave 'appened to my

It was former Detec Sergeant Matthew Beef who went into the little mortuary to identify his late nephew for the coroner, and to determine the nature of the fatal wound . . .</

Ford Motor Co. Refuses To Consent To Election

Detroit, Jan. 17.—The Ford Motor Co. today declined to consent to a National Labor Relations Board election to determine whether the UAW-CIO shall be the collective bargaining agent for the 3,800 workers at the Ford Lincoln plant.

Stimson Makes Denial

Washington, Jan. 17.—Secretary of War Stimson today characterized as "fantastic and preposterous" published stories that the lend-lease bill was deliberately designed to give President Roosevelt power to buy the British Navy if Britain falls, and to permit operation of British warships from American ports.

Recalled by the House Foreign Affairs Committee for questioning on the "all out" aid to Britain bill, Stimson clashed with stocky Rep. Tinkham, R., Mass., bitter foe of the Roosevelt foreign policy.

"I never heard of such a suggestion," replied Stimson to Tinkham's questioning, which had included a query as to whether Mr. Roosevelt could buy remnants of the French Navy.

"Do you consider it could be done under the bill," demanded Tinkham. "I have not considered it in that light," replied Stimson. "I consider that one of those fantastic and preposterous suggestions such as the President might give away the Navy."

Claims Hitler is World's "Public Enemy No. 1"

LANGHORNE, Jan. 17.—That Hitler is the "world's public enemy No. 1" was the consensus of opinion of John Duffield, of the New York Tribune lecturers' bureau, offered yesterday as he addressed 75 members and guests of Sorosis in the library on the subject of "Foreign Affairs and American Preparedness."

Mr. Duffield urged that America give all aid possible to Great Britain, adding that he wondered "if we realize the danger if she loses." The women were informed that an average of 250 planes per month are being shipped to Britain; adding that it was a fine gesture on the part of the United States to exchange the 50 battleships for 99-year lease on the islands. Another bit of information was that attempts to assassinate Hitler have occurred at least eight times. "I feel that if Germany wins, Russia will be the next target of Germany."

The speaker informed that Japan is nothing to worry about, likening her to a puppy barking at a mastiff, the "mastiff" being the United States. "The United States has been asleep for a long time, but during the last few weeks is wide awake. . . . We should do everything possible to produce needed war materials, for preparedness' sake, and we should also increase our army."

Mrs. Elmer Pickett, chairman of international relations committee, introduced the speaker.

Vocal solos were offered by Mrs. Bertie Sylvester, South Langhorne, with Mrs. Harry Friedrich, pianist, and Mrs. Ernest Gamble, violinist, accompanying.

A business meeting is arranged for February 6th, with a surprise program; and on February 20th, a Sunday, the program will be in charge of the art and music committee.

"Industrial Safety" Is

Rotary Club Subject

pany. At the conclusion of his talk he showed members many of the safety devices employed by Rohm & Haas. The talk, which was greatly enjoyed by Rotary members, follows:

"I feel that this subject is one not generally in the public eye, and that it may be of special interest to those of you who are not familiar with the problems of industry and what agencies have been at work to make the factory more safe than the home."

"The credit for this work belongs to that public-spirited non-profit organization known as the National Safety Council. To give you the background leading to the formation of this body, we must go back to 1907. Prior to this time there had been no advance in safety rules and methods to correspond to the rapid increase in the hazards of modern factory systems due to the introduction of high-speed production methods. Instead of small shops with few machines as after the Civil War, immense rooms crowded with machinery became the rule. Lost fingers, hands, arms, etc., were common. The average employer felt his duty done if he gave a watchman's job to some unfortunate, or if none available, gave him a few hundred dollars or perhaps to the widow if the man was killed."

"This condition was possible because of inadequate laws which gave the employers the unsound defence of the 'contributory negligence' of the employee. Employers were ignorant of the economic loss in both direct and indirect cost due to accidents. They also took the fatalistic view that accidents were unavoidable. . . ."

"In 1907 and 1908 Federal Acts improved the legal status of the worker, and a little later, one state after another passed compensation laws."

"As soon as industry had to pay the accident bill, interest in safety work awakened, and prompted investigations which showed that accidents could be avoided, and that the expenses of a good safety organization were soon repaid in insurance rate reductions and other items."

"About 1912 a small group of men interested in safety met in Milwaukee under the auspices of the 'Association of Iron and Steel Electrical Engineering.' Their enthusiasm brought visions of a great national association. This vision was realized one year later when the National Safety Council was formed in New York City. This council now has an industrial membership representing more than 10,000 workshops and 8,000,000 workers. . . ."

"Since 1925, the efforts of the National Safety Council began to bear fruit. The frequency rate of accidents in the chemical industry decreased 76%, and in industry as a whole 6%. By frequency rate, I mean accidents per 1,000,000 man hours worked."

"Our own company, Rohm & Haas, kept pace with the trend, and today we are proud of the fact that we are 15% better than the average in our classification. For example, we had what was considered a good record in 1930, but if we had had the same experience in 1940, we would have had an accident bill of three times the 1930 one instead of 1-3; to say nothing of lost wages, one death, and three major accidents."

"All this was not done by standing idly by, and letting our men take care of themselves. We human beings are a peculiar animal. We must be continually impressed with the need for care. The safety director has the thankless task of saving men from their own folly."

"Mechanical safeguards are automatically provided. Equipment for fire fighting is always at hand to extinguish incipient fires. Personal protective equipment is at hand for use as needed."

"But none of this would be of any avail if we did not continually bombard our men with safety propaganda. This is the chief function of the safety director. From the moment a man is hired when the safety director gives him a personal heart to heart talk on the value of safety until the man leaves our service or dies of old age, he is flooded with this safety barrage. This

EVERY DOLLAR SPENT AT HOME PAYS DOUBLE DIVIDENDS

Every dollar spent at home helps to make our future secure. It not only buys for us merchandise comparable in quality and price to any other trading section, but it helps maintain our schools, our churches, and the costs of local government.

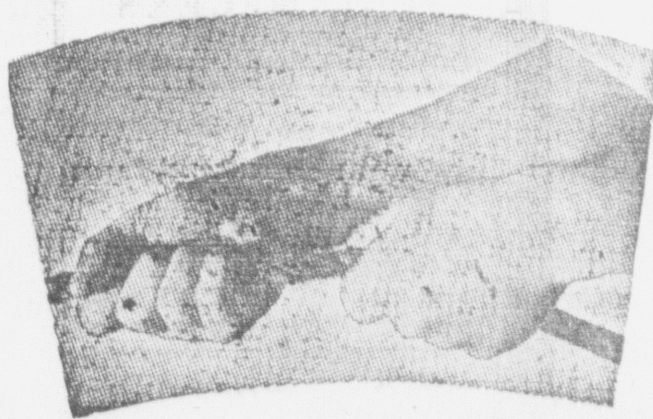

How does it accomplish this double purpose? Simply because of the fact that local merchants help support the schools, costs of local government and churches. A portion of every dollar spent with a local merchant is turned back to the Borough in the form of taxes. And local merchants help support the institutions of Bristol. Why let your dollars roam to other towns?

The challenge is up to you. You alone can help to make the future of Bristol secure. You alone can help to build Bristol. You alone can "build Bristol by buying in Bristol."

Buying at home increases local payrolls. We urge you to try Bristol first. Whether it be groceries, household items, clothing, or any other article, try Bristol first.

LET'S ALL PULL-L-L..... TOGETHER!

Claims Responsibility For Child Rests With The Home

MORRISVILLE, Jan. 17.—Those affiliated with Morrisville Women's Club heard an address this week delivered by Dr. Edward Snow, of Lower Merion junior high school, on the subject of "The Unspanked Generation."

Dr. Snow stressed the point that the responsibility for a child rests with the home and not with the school.

The speaker traced the home life through earlier history and pointed out the changes wrought through social and political upheaval.

Under the direction of Miss Bernice Howard, the speaking choir of Morrisville high school gave several selections with leading roles taken by John Hoogstraete and Nan Windle.

An art corner was arranged by the art department, featuring a display suitable for children.

Mrs. John Ulrich, chairman of the welfare department, reported on the fine response given by club members for food, clothing and toys which were distributed at Christmas.

The next meeting will be held February 4th, when Miss Elizabeth Steward Goodwin will speak on "History in the Making."

Today's Quiet Moment

(By Howard L. Zepp, Th. M.)

Father, let us not miss the message which Thou art sending to us in the common blessings that come to us in our daily life. We have so often overlooked the little things that might be used in Thy service. When we are tempted to waste, help us to remember that we are Thy stewards and are about to throw away that for which we must give account to Thee. Grant us a true sense of proportion and a clear sense of values. Amen.

ON THE SCREENS

BRISTOL THEATRE

Preston Sturges is currently the wonder of the motion picture business following the great success of "The Great McGinty," which he directed and for which he wrote both story and screenplay. His second picture for Paramount is "Christmas in July," which opens today at the Bristol Theatre, co-starring Dick Powell and Ellen Drew, and again he served as director and writer.

Boasting one of the strongest supporting casts, beautiful scenery and a fast moving story, "Arizona Frontier," starring singing cowboy Tex Ritter, is due to open today at the Bristol Theatre.

RITZ THEATRE

One man's generosity, another man's cowardice, and a woman's poignant sacrifice, are dramatically woven into the stirring theme of "They Knew What They Wanted," which unites two of the screen's most outstanding stars, Carole Lombard and Charles Laughton, at the Ritz Theatre.

This vivid screen version of the famous Pulitzer Prize play by the late Sidney Howard is laid in California's romantic grape-growing section. Miss Lombard is seen as a lonely waterfront waitress who accepts a mail proposal of marriage from Tony Patucci (Laughton), good-natured, successful vintyardist who yearns for a wife. William Gargan plays his restless foreman whose weakness for women stirs him to violate his employer's trust.

GRAND THEATRE

"The Ramparts We Watch" is March of Time's powerful feature motion picture of American destiny from 1914

on. This first full-length screen photograph produced by the March of Time shows you life as it was lived 25 years ago in your community... throughout America... when our democracy once before met the challenge of European upheaval.

See how the greatest nation on earth plunges into the most stupendous industrial, military and spiritual effort. See everyday people like you and the folks next door as they take their stand, shoulder to shoulder against aggression... people like lovely Hilda Bensinger who sends her sweetheart to fight her father's native Germany.

There is an inspiring message of courage and confidence in "The Ramparts We Watch," showing today at the Grand Theatre.

"Finger-Printing" Discussed Before The Civic Club

YARDELY, Jan. 17.—"Finger Printing" was the subject discussed before members of Yardley Civic Club yesterday, with Sergeant J. J. Orzechowski, instructor at New Jersey State Police Training School, as guest speaker. Sgt. Orzechowski stressed the three reasons most necessary for persons to be finger printed: conviction of criminals; identification of injured persons; and identification of persons lost.

The Misses Mary Evelyn Holesclaw and Betty Smith, favored with two duets, "Indian Summer" and "I Hear a Rhapsody."

Mrs. Lura R. Ross and Mrs. Virgil Kauffman conducted a contest for invalid trays. The judges included Mrs. Francis C. Thomas, Mrs. Matthew S. Bennett, and Mrs. B. Warner Shay. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Mary J. Barbour, and Mrs. William D. Pardoe, for the most original, and to Miss Helen W. Leedom, and Mrs. W. D. Pardoe, for the most artistic.

The next meeting on February 6th, will be under the direction of Mrs. Greinhart K. Hammer, who will have as the subject of the afternoon, "Women in Aviation."

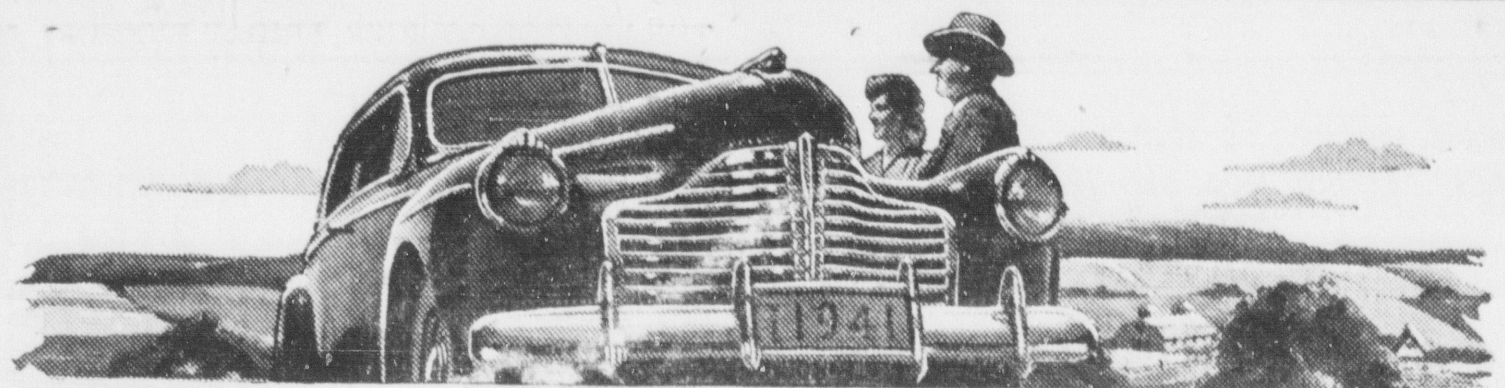

15 Kiwanis Clubs Honor Two of Their Officials

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 17.—Fifteen Kiwanis Clubs in the ninth division were represented at the testimonial dinner given in honor of past lieutenant-governor Elmer L. Menges, of Ambler, and of the newly-elected head of the division, J. Leonard Halderman, Doylestown, Tuesday evening.

One hundred and forty Kiwanians from Doylestown, Philadelphia, Yeading, Glenside, Norristown, Telford-Souderton, Phoenixville, Ambler, Chester Pike, Lansdale, Quakertown, Olney, Old York Road, Sellersville, and the Main Line clubs attended the event, which was the largest attended Kiwanis dinner meeting, with one exception, in the history of the Doylestown club.

The retiring lieutenant governor was presented a handsome watch, with the letters of his name—Elmer Menges—in raised gold on the face of the watch to take the place of the numbers. The watch was appropriately engraved, a gift from the 16 Kiwanis clubs in the ninth division.

The presentation was made by President Judge Hiram H. Keller, a past president of the Doylestown club. Lieutenant Governor Halderman was given a bouquet of flowers. Congressman J. William Ditter, of Ambler, Montgomery county, and Congressman Joseph O'Brien, of the Rochester, N. Y., district, paid appropriate tributes to the honored guests.

Take Charge, Mister... and Let's Fireball!

THERE'S a new word spreading through the vocabularies of car owners who have made firsthand acquaintances with this slick new 1941 Buick.

It's a word we first picked out as an apt description of a new and better engine—but it is rapidly coming to mean a completely new and excitingly pleasurable manner of motorcar travel.

All over the country, "to fireball" now means to enjoy both ease and dispatch in your travel by car—with a very special new manner of thrift.

Not the ordinary, scrumpy, self-denying sort of thrift, but thrill with all the thrills left in!

Now, just why that happens is easy to understand.

*Optional equipment on the Buick SPECIAL, standard on all other series.

Reenforced by Compound Carburetion* this FIREBALL eight develops nearly 17% more horsepower on exactly the same fuel rationing.

With all that power on call, we can use a more economical gear ratio as our standard high gear—a ratio that ups miles per gallon by giving more revolutions of the wheels for every revolution of the engine.

Then, in addition, we have in Compound Carburetion a fuel supply system that adjusts itself according to the driving conditions you meet.

Thus your engine is always getting the utmost benefit out of the least amount of gasoline that will give the performance you want.

And that spells economy.

So much economy that a man who drives 15,000 miles a year gets as much as 2,000 miles' extra driving on the same amount of fuel.

And that, Buick buyers will tell you, is something very much worth looking into through a free demonstration such as any Buick dealer will gladly give.

LANKY "AUGIE" EVERITT WINS SCORING LAURELS IN FIRST HALF OF BRISTOL BASKETBALL LEAGUE

The individual scoring laurels of the first half of the Bristol Basketball League went to the lanky "Augie" Everitt, center-man of the Rohm & Haas team. Everitt scored 71 points in the seven games of the first half, averaging 10.1 points per game. In amassing his total of points, Everitt made 30 field goals and 11 fouls.

Everitt topped his team-mate, Ralph Cahall, by 7 points. Cahall had 27 double-deckers and 20 fouls for 64 points, while "Punkie" Zeffries, brilliant Manhattan forward, was a close third with 59 points, made with 23 field goals and 13 free shots. Zeffries was the best foul-shooter of the first half, getting 13 out of 17 tries.

Current-topped "Billy" Gallagher, of Rohm & Haas, also proved a good man from the foul line, sinking in 9 out of 12 tries, with Al Barbetta, of Franklin, making 10 out of 18. Florio, Pica, Barbetta, and Cooper, Voltz-Texaco, all first-year men, gave a fine account of themselves.

Although he participated in but 2 games Freddie Briglie, Profy's, had the best average per game with a 15 mark. Johnny Zack, with four games, was third in the list with 11, while VanLenten, who played two games with Fifth Ward, was second with 11.5.

Gus Carnvale, Profy's, and G. Pollack, Voltz-Texaco, were the only two players in the league's 83 who failed to register a point. Both played in one game.

The scoring records were compiled by President Thomas Juno and Board Secretary, Leo Scliarra.

BRISTOL "UP" FOR GAME WITH OWLS AT CORNWELLS

Falls and Morrisville Clash in Important Loop
Game

PLAY AT TRENTON
Falcons Must Take Dogs Over
In Order to Step Up Front

By Jack Gill

Another chapter in the play entitled "Battle of the Pike" will be chalked up in the record book tonight at Cornwells Heights, Bensalem, the new upstart that invariably ruffles the Bensalem fur, meets the Cardinals on the basketball court.

Both schools are neighborhood rivals, the two towns located close enough to create a rivalry were merely mild opponents up until a year ago. This was due mainly because the two failed to hit harmoniously on football negotiations.

Then they started battling one another on the gridiron. Much to Bristol's dismay, the Owls have started them upon two rather abrupt occasions.

Bristol faces the Bensalem team in a revengeful and improved mettle this evening. Stirred by their recent 28-26 conquest of a highly touted Upper Merion five and well aware of the fact that the Owls aren't startling the basketball world this winter, the locals envision a triumph.

All eyes are turned to an outside fray tonight, as the Fallsington five entertains a mediocre Morrisville aggregation at Junior High School number four.

This is another "backyard" court affair. Both towns border one another. Falls, enthused over its recent success and off to a flying start in the league with a one point decision scored over Bristol, banks on its two scoring aces, Frank Moon and Little Art Driscoll.

It may be true that Morrisville has appeared woefully weak this season, but it must be pointed out that their opposition in most instances was of the very best. For this reason they enter the ball game on an even rating with the Orange.

Down at Cornwells, where Bristol must loosen on a smaller playing floor, a saucy individual duel supplies added interest. Two kids with the "know how," Chick Di Angelo, of Bristol, and Bobby Scarborough, of Bensalem, are two of the districts top-notch scoring leaders. Scarborough, playing with bad knees, may not be a match for the Bristol forward on the floor, but he is an ever dangerous man.

Bob Monti, Bristol's ball player of the year thus far, is the key man on the squad. His work in obtaining the ball under the basket has been beyond reproach. Likewise, he starts the ball on the move from the backcourt to the ends up front with unruffled ease.

This will be a non-league fuss. Bristol, Falls and Morrisville compose one league, while Bensalem, Buckingham and Southampton form the other division.

or, more firmly established him as leader of the opposition, gave him opportunity to repeat his charges that the bill means war and the President's purpose is to take us in. If it had not been for the savagery of Mr. Roosevelt's assault, Mr. Wheeler's remarks quickly would have been forgotten. Second, it exhibits the President as not in control of his temper, and that is calculated to create apprehension about the character of his leadership. He can accomplish much more by not permitting exaggerated and absurd statements from the other side to throw him off balance.

IF ever a man needed to be cool, calm and free from passion, he does now. If the opposition can keep him irritated and upset, it world as possible.

"What we must consider for ourselves in view of such a philosophy is this question, 'Is democracy worth saving?' What are the values of our democracy? The rights that we enjoy, such as freedom of speech, of the press, the right of free assembly, and above all of religious liberty, are the real values of democracy, and these are certainly worth saving," he explained.

The Rev. Bingham went on to say that if we are to go to war we must not adopt the attitude of Belgium and the Netherlands, and wait to be attacked. "In many ways the value of attack is half the battle as any military man knows. I do not want war to come to this country but if it does we must be prepared to strike back with our full power, and not wait to be overrun as those who waited in Europe with the hope that war would pass them by," he said.

"Another vital issue that we must keep in mind, is the part that the United States must play in the peace that will follow this war. We will be the richest nation, the arsenal of democracies and we must not stand aside and again hide within our shell of isolation. We must keep in mind that we have a moral responsibility to mankind in general and we must exercise this responsibility. We are not keeping in mind that man's relation to God should amplify his relation to his fellow men. We must aid in bringing about a peace that will preserve in the world the moral and religious and democratic values that we in this country enjoy for ourselves," he concluded.
